Last week, I decided to buy a new phone. I walked into the store and looked around for the latest models. The salesperson approached me and asked if I needed any assistance. I told him that I was interested in purchasing a smartphone. He showed me different options and explained their features.

After comparing the phones, I chose one that suited my needs. The salesperson rang it up at the counter, and I paid for it using my credit card. He handed me the receipt and gave me a warranty for the device. I was excited to have a brand-new phone!
