Last month, I had a new experience at the airport. I was going to a different country for the first time, and I felt both excited and a little scared. When I arrived at the airport, I followed the signs to the check-in desks. The line was long, but the staff was helpful, and I got my ticket without any problems.

After checking in, I went to the security area. I had to take off my shoes, jacket, and belt and put them in a tray for checking. The security officers were careful but nice. Once I finished, I collected my things and went to the waiting area.

While waiting near the gate, I saw a screen showing flight information. My flight was delayed by 30 minutes, so I had some extra time to explore the shops with tax-free prices. I got a cup of coffee and found a comfortable chair to relax.

When it was time to get on the plane, I joined the line and showed my ticket. The flight attendants welcomed me with a smile and told me where to sit. The flight was smooth, and the cabin crew gave great service during the trip.
