John arrived at the hotel after a long journey. He approached the reception desk and greeted the receptionist. He handed over his passport and mentioned his reservation under the name "John Anderson." The receptionist quickly found his booking and informed him that he had reserved a single room on the fifth floor. John confirmed that he would be staying for three nights. After completing the check-in process, the receptionist provided him with a room key and explained the hotel's facilities, including the restaurant, gym, and pool. John thanked the receptionist and headed to his room to freshen up.
